WEDNESDAY, NOV. 2, 1898.

Readers of the Louisville Dispatch, if there be any, would like to know what it says the Times and Post for the use of the latter's state telegraph service. The Dispatch's state news always seems distressingly short on Mondays. Is it because there are no Times and Posts on Sunday?

Hon. Perry S. Heath, assistant postmaster general, is a candidate for the United States senate to succeed Senator Turpie, of Indiana. Mr. Heath has made a most excellent record at Washington and has a host of friends wherever he is known. His election to the United States senate would be a most deserved recognition of his splendid business qualities and his loyalty to the republican party.

Hon. Bryan is now being posed as a martyr by the Nebraska politicians, says Town Topics. They declare that he is "helplessly ill," and that the McKinley administration is guilty of the "dastardly crime" and "infamous trick" of keeping him in the army so as to cripple him politically. On the contrary, the McKinley administration would be only too glad to have Bryan on the stump, shooting off his mouth instead of his revolver, and doing his little utmost to distract and divide the democratic party by his 16 to 1 nonsense.

Col. Bryan has been treated by Secretary Alger with the utmost courtesy and consideration and if he refuse to appreciate and acknowledge this fact he will add ingratitude to his other failings.

AN IMPORTANT ELECTION.

It is doubtful if the American people fully realize the intense importance of the coming congressional elections. Ordinarily the elections in off years are relatively unimportant and no great issue is at stake. Now, however, the policy of the administration is before the people for approval or disapproval. The war with Spain is apparently over and the peace commissioners are endeavoring to formulate a treaty. Spain will regard a democratic victory as a repudiation of the policy of the administration. It is not regarded as a mere party contest but as a contest over the issues that have grown out of the war with Spain. The president and his party stand by the war and its results. The democratic leaders, who claim they will be able to control the next congress, were opposed to the war, the conduct of the war and the results of the war.

Congressman Bailey, of Texas, who hopes to be the next democratic speaker, as he is a democratic leader in the present house, stated in a speech at Petersburg, Va., Saturday, that had the democratic party had its way there would have been no such questions as those relating to the Philippines to be settled now. Mr. Bailey did everything he possibly could to embarrass the administration to recognize the so-called Cuban republic and stop there.

The American people have, however, in unmistakable terms expressed their approval of the policy of the administration in annexing Porto Rico and in demanding the whole of the Philippines. Indeed the latter demand by our government has been in response to the demand of the people.

Should the democratic party control the next congress, it will be in the power of Mr. Bailey, who would undoubtedly be speaker, to reverse the policy of the administration or at least so to embarrass the President that his policy would be nullified. We do not believe that the American people desire any such result. We do not believe that they want the administration's policy changed in any particular. We are a nation entitled to the full fruits of the war and the people have said. But with Mr. Bailey speaker of the house the President would be fortunate if he secured any kind of a treaty with Spain that did not bring disgrace upon the stars and stripes.

NEW YORK'S BIG FIGHT.

The Advantage Is With Roosevelt—His Reputation for Honesty Overcomes His Peculiarities

Boss Croker's Shadow Rests on Van Wyck—Possibly the Most Interesting State Election Ever Held in New York.

New York, Oct. 2.—There are many interesting features in the campaign here. The republicans are making all the noise, and if enthusiasm will win, Col. Roosevelt will carry the state by a large majority. But the democrats are doing hard work from ward to ward and from precinct to precinct, and by the use of that peculiar machinery which has been so effective in previous elections Tammany is squeezing every individual, every firm and every corporation upon which it can get its grasp. The great tiger trainer, Richard Croker, is personally directing the campaign, and is using unusual methods which are a source of weakness as well as strength to the democratic ticket.

In the city Croker is a great power—"One blast upon his bugle horn" in a political battle is worth a thousand men—but in the country he is a beggar. The rural democrats fear and distrust him. They always fight him in conventions and hate Tammany almost as much as they do the republicans.

This is the first time Mr. Croker has undertaken to dominate the state. He has convinced his "sphere of influence" in New York City and in the smaller cities and towns that he is a great power and that he will not let them down. He has already placed one of the Van Wyck brothers in the mayor's chair of Greater New York, and he is now proposing to place the other in the governor's mansion. They are doubtful as to the consequences.

How far this feeling will affect the vote for Van Wyck is the "question of the hour." It is a question, but it does not encourage enthusiasm outside of the metropolis. On the other hand Roosevelt is racing around the state like a cyclone, with life and drum and fire-minute speeches, which are so short that he need not apologize for evading state issues. He appeared in seven different halls in New York City Monday evening—ten minutes to ten minutes to make the run between them. Last week he made 40 to 50 speeches every day at the same number of places, mostly from the rear of the hall.

It is essentially a barab campaign, and a great many prudent people are inquiring whether all the crowds that follow Roosevelt are going to vote for him. Most of them will, but "white men are mighty uncertain." There is a great admiration for Theodore Roosevelt everywhere. He is conceded to be a man of brilliant intellect and charming personality and a gallant soldier. At the same time he has the reputation of being reckless, impetuous, self-willed and erratic; often lacking judgment, and being guided more by his impulses than his reason. Such qualities, they say, may be made very useful when under the control of a strong hand, but are likely to be very dangerous when possessed of such authority and power as are invested in the governor of New York.

A topic of serious discussion among the business and thinking men of the state is whether Roosevelt can be trusted in the executive chair. The drift seems to be in his favor. Judge Van Wyck, his opponent, is a very respectable gentleman of quiet manners and conservative disposition, who has made an honorable reputation at the bar, and has served creditably in the lower courts, but his character is colorless and his intellect is of the average. He is not a man of great power, but he is a man of great integrity.

The company was up to every requirement, and like all those Carter sends out, evenly balanced and thoroughly in touch with the play. The play came well recommended, and if it ever returns, will doubtless be greeted by a packed house. It is the latest of the strongest of Lincoln J. Carter's plays, especially his later ones.

HIS UNWELCOME LEGACY.

How Mr. Armstrong Overcame Inherited Gout and Rheumatism with Warner's Safe Cure.

In the good old days when torture was employed to loosen the tongues of stubborn witnesses, which was sometimes allowed to fall drop by drop upon the victim's forehead. After a short time the pain passed all endurance, and the witness was willing to tell all he knew, perhaps more. A memory of this barbarity still lingers in our word "gout," which is of French origin and means, literally, a drop. Certainly the agony of the disease is comparable with that of the old torture.

"I inherited gout from my father," says G. Archibald Armstrong, of 4507 Germantown avenue, Philadelphia. "But my doctor was always able to keep the disease within bounds until five years ago when after a fight with la grippe, I had what the physicians called muscular rheumatism. For hours at a time I could not raise my arm more than a few inches. My feet swelled and turned purple. Ointments and liniments only irritated the burning flesh. I could not bear the weight of the lightest bedclothes on my feet. This swelling had extended to my thighs and my family were getting anxious about me, when a valued friend insisted that my kidneys were at fault and persuaded me to try Warner's Safe Cure."

"The swelling began to subside within forty-eight hours, but the third bottle of Safe Cure was consumed before I felt myself on the way to recovery. I realized at last that I had a certain remedy against my old enemy, gout, and that the Safe Cure was clearing my system of every trace of rheumatic poison."

"This was five years ago. Since that time I have been exposed to all sorts of weather, but I keep well and have almost forgotten that such a thing as gout or rheumatism ever ailed me."

It is the business of the kidneys to take from the blood a substance called uric acid, which forms tiny, sharp-edged crystals, hard as granite and poisonous as a rattlesnake's bite, although slow in action. When the kidneys are diseased, the blood deposits these death-laden crystals where circulation is slowest—in the toes, the joints and the ears. The sharp edges cut into the flesh. That is what makes the maddening pain of rheumatism and gout. Mr. Armstrong's friends were right. The kidneys were at fault, and when Warner's Safe Cure had strengthened them the unwelcome legacy of gout was driven away.

RAILROAD WRECK.

The Morning Accommodation on the St. Louis Division Wrecked at Ozark.

Fortunately, No One Was Hurt in the Accident. Cars Derailed.

The St. Louis accommodation train, due here at 7:30 a. m., did not arrive this morning. It was wrecked at an early hour this morning at Ozark, Ill., two freight cars and one passenger coach being derailed.

The train is made up of freight and passenger cars, and the cause of the accident is unknown, but no one was hurt.

A wrecking crew was sent out from Brooklyn, Ill., this morning to assist in clearing the wreck. This is the first accident to occur in some time on this division.

LAYERS—The train arrived about noon today, and the passengers report a hair breadth escape. It is supposed that the wreck was caused by spreading rails. The accident occurred about one mile from Ozark, at 5:10 this morning and the first known of the fireman discovered that some of the cars were leaving the rails. The head brakeman thought the entire train was going off the bridge, and jumped down an embankment about 15 feet high, but escaped with slight bruises.

Conductor E. D. Haneck was very cool headed, and refused to leave his train but stuck manfully to

It is a fact, through the excitement among the people.

Two cars of the train went over the bridge, and were derailed on the earth 30 feet below. The sleepers, in which were ten passengers, were on the bridge when the train was stopped.

There was great excitement aboard the train, and it will be some time before the track is clear.

Attorney Mike Oliver of Benton was aboard the train. A remarkable coincidence is the fact that exactly one year ago today, not 100 yards from the time the wreck took place, he was in a wreck near Cairo.

The passengers, minus the cars that went off, arrived at noon. All praise the train crew.

HEART DISEASE.

Some Facts Regarding the Rapid Increase of Heart Troubles.

Do Not Be alarmed, But Look at the Causes.

Heart trouble, at least among Americans, are rapidly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real, organic heart disease, is incurable, but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by branches of the same great nerve—the sympathetic and pneumogastric.

In another way, also, the heart is affected by that form of poor digestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food: there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure on the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence, anxious palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, makes it thin and watery, which irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can best be done by the regular use after meals, of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular, persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.
